The five little girls pictured above, all 12 years of age or under are competing for the title of Princess of the County Fair. The lucky girl, elected by the number of votes she receives through the sale of tickets, will be named Friday morning, and will be crowned as County Fair Princess by Reeve J. E. Carlson of the County of Vulcan. The Princess will receive a diamond-set gold wrist watch, and the runners-up, who will be the princess' ladies-in-waiting, will each receive a voucher for $25.00, negotiable at any store in the county.

Barbara Fletcher, sponsored by the Brant-Ensign district, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Fletcher of Brant. She is 12 years old and attends Brant school.

Marjorie Kurtz is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Kurtz of Kirkcaldy and is the candidate of the Kirkcaldy-Vulcan-Reid Hill district. She is also 12 years of age and is a pupil at the Kirkcaldy school.

The "baby" of the candidates is little Linda Lucas of Armada, nine-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lucas of Armada.

She is sponsored by the Lamond-Armada district.

The north-east part of the county is represented by Noreen Nelson, candidate for the Milo-Queenstown-Mossleigh-Arrowwood district. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Nelson of Queenstown.

Princess candidate for the southern part of the county — Champion-Carmangay — is Frances Versluys, 12 years old, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Versluys of Champion.

A number of very attractive prizes are being given away in connection with the princess contest and are now on display in a window of Robinson Stores. They include a 26-piece set of Rogers Silverware, a pair of heavy woolen blankets, a pop-up electric toaster and a table and chair set.

Scattered Hail Damage

Present Prospects Are For Better-than-average Crops

Colder weather moved into the district on Sunday with Monday night's temperature dropping to -2. Skies were cloudy on Tuesday.

Crops are ripening rapidly and in most parts of the district a rain would be welcomed to aid in filling the heavy stands of wheat. At the present time it is estimated the harvest will be, at the most, only a few days later than last year.

Although scattered hail damage has cut into many promising fields, prospects are good for a better-than-average crop and in many parts of the district, particularly east and around Milo, crops have never looked better.

Local showers were reported in various parts of the district east and north of Vulcan Tuesday night and are welcomed as an aid in filling the heavy crop.

Swaths Barley On August 3rd

Earliest report of harvest activities in the county to reach the Advocate office is that of Einar Lundgren, who swathed 15 acres of early-sown barley on August 3.

This was a fine, heavy stand. Mr. Lundgren estimates it will yield between 50 and 60 bushels per acre.

Shower Honors Young Irish Bride

Complimenting Mrs. Bob Loose, whose marriage took place last month, a miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mrs. Stan Scates, Thursday evening of last week. Mrs. F. J. Mensinger and Mrs. Bev. Banks were assisting hostesses and some 60 guests were present.

A mock Farmer's Wedding provided much merriment and provided the first part of the evening's entertainment. A musical program followed with songs by Anne and Helen Nicol, Marilyn Scates and Carolyn Houlton, accompanied by Mrs. Charlie Andrews.

The entire gathering joined in singing "Ireland Must Be Heaven" as a special goodwill gesture to the bride, who came from the Emerald Isle last year.

A child's wagon decorated as a hayrack, piled high with many lovely gifts was brought in and presented to the bride, by Mrs. Elwood Mensinger who expressed the good wishes of all for a long and happy married life. Assisting the guest of honor in opening the many attractively wrapped parcels was Mrs. C. W. Loose, Miss Eden Loose and Mrs. Elwood Mensinger.

Mrs. Loose very suitably thanked her friends for the beautiful and useful gifts as well as the good wishes.

The hostess served a delicious lunch to bring the happy event to a happy close.

One Pound At Birth Still Active At 71

Recent publicity in the dailies regarding small babies has brought forth the information, substantiated by a newspaper clipping, that Miller White, well known local district farmer, weighed just exactly one pound at birth, in 1889.

The clipping states that "a silver dollar on his nose would hide the whole face," and "people came from all over the country to see him." He was born in Jasper County, Iowa.

Half and hearty at 71 years of age, Mr. White still resides on his Vulcan district farm and is active in work around the place.

Yugoslavia Repatriates Greek Children

In compliance with recommendations of the United Nations General Assembly, Yugoslavia has been repatriating to Greece a number of Greek children removed from their homeland during the post-war guerrilla struggle in that part of the world. Above, one of the touching scenes which took place near the Greek frontier station of Idomeni upon the reunion of a mother with her two children.

sects sent in glass or other containers are best. To speed up service, address the package to the department or branch rather than to an individual, and label it "Specimen for Identification".

Mr. Kilduff says that a common mistake made by enquirers is relating to the object in question. Tell where it came from, he advises. It is better to give the legal land description as well as the postal address of the sender. Advice offered for control of a weed may differ widely where one specimen comes from a light sandy loam 12 miles north of Centralia, and another of the same kind from 15 miles south east of the same point on heavy clay. Was it collected on prairie, in wooded land, in a field crop, on the roadside, or from garden or lawn? Was it an isolated specimen or one of many? If an insect, add information about what it was feeding on.

Keep on sending specimens to your nearest source of agricultural information, advises Mr. Kilduff, but please send them fresh and well packaged. Provide all the particulars you can, and be sure to include your name and address for reply.

A beat-up travel-weary specimen with a note, "What is it, and can I do about it?", may be in order if you are trying to stump the experts, says T. Kilduff, Research Extension Officer for the Alberta Department of Agriculture at the Science Service Laboratories, Lethbridge, but it is hardly a satisfactory way to seek information. Identification of weeds, other plants, or plant diseases and insect pests, is a service expected from agricultural offices and institutions. The men engaged in technical and scientific work welcome an opportunity to help you, but for their best efforts all specimens sent in should be so selected and prepared that they arrive in the best possible condition.

Too often, only part of a plant is sent, or it may be damaged or decomposed when it arrives. In all cases, a typical, fresh specimen of the plant (roots, stem, leaves, and flowers or seed if present) should be submitted. Vegetables, fruits and other soft tissue specimens submitted for diagnosis of disease should not be well on the way to breakdown before mailing. Careful wrapping in moist paper and re-wrapping in waxed paper before packaging helps to keep them fresh. In-

Neighbors of Bereaved Family

46 Outfits Summer-fallow 350 Acres in Three Hours

Neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Jacobson, whose 21-year-old son, Norman, was drowned at Henderson Lake, Lethbridge, on July 27, gathered at their farm early Wednesday morning of last week, and in three hours, tilled 350 acres of summer-fallow land.

Forty-six neighbors of the Jacobson family participated in the work bee, which was inspired by the sympathy felt by the whole community for the Jacobsons in the untimely loss of their only son. Forty-six tractor and tiller outfits were on the land as early as 6.30 a. m. and many other farmers offered their help. Within three hours the 350 acres of summer-fallowing was completed and the outfits were on their way back home, with Mr. and Mrs. Jacobson and their daughter Clara relieved of the responsibility of getting the work done.

Tractor and tiller outfits were brought from as far away as nine miles to do their share of the work and those who participated included Melbourne Dunham, Wesley Fulton, Ronnie Rushfield, Ives Sullivan, Frank Love, Ross Smith, Victor Rushfield, Jerry Steiner, Stewart Douglas, Ross Giles, Allan Smith, Carson Love, Victor Fulton, Neil Giles, Allan Sinclair, Donald Woodman, Ivo Love, Mart Jose, Bert Methers, Ed Kehr, Russel Graham, Bill Burgess, Ralph McKinnon, Glen McLennan, Lloyd Richardson, Howard Jurney, Reg Stein, Elmer Plourd, Joe Gerding, Albert Markert, Leon Bateman, Carl Jordan, Steve Slyzen, Andrew Nafziger, Ed Richardson, Harris Matlock, Howard Burrell, George Bateman, Bud Creek, Alfred Ullly, Jim McNeven, Andy Knife, Clay Snow, Doc Almond, Alva Love and George Fulton.

GREAT BRITAIN BUYS CANADIAN WHEAT & FLOUR

The United Kingdom will purchase 95 million bushels of wheat from Canada under the terms of the International Wheat Agreement for registration in 1951-52. In addition, the United Kingdom will purchase from Canada 350,000 tons of flour, which is equivalent to 18 million bushels of wheat.

The United Kingdom also expressed an interest in purchasing further quantities of wheat from Canada on a Class II basis, if additional quantities of wheat are available for shipment from Canada. It has been agreed that the two countries will, on September 20, 1951, consider a further purchase and sale of 250,000 long tons (9.3 million bushels) of wheat on a Class II basis.

Mayor Gets 12 lb. Salmon At Coast

Mayor Dyce Allan, an enthusiastic fisherman, had the "thrill of a lifetime" recently when he hooked and landed his first salmon — a 12-pounder.

The big event occurred while he and Mrs. Allan were visiting Bill Brown, former Vulcan businessman who now resides at Sydney, B. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan were accompanied on the trip by Mrs. Taylor and son Bill. They visited a sister of Mayor Allan's at Kelowna and an aunt at Vancouver. In Victoria they visited Mrs. R. Robie, another former Vulcan resident.

Radar Experts Guard N. America

Nearly 25,000 air force radar men now are on steady watch at stations and control centres in the United States and Canada to detect the approach of any strange and possibly hostile planes.

The aircraft warning system has reached the point where it is 97 per cent manned. The Associated Press has been told.

The United States Air Force's air raid warning organization is composed of 12 groups of regular troops and three of federalized air national guard outfits. Each group has personnel to man a number of stations.

The exact number of warning stations and control centres and their locations are secret.

The stations in the U.S.A. and Alaska work with those of Canada under the mutual Canadian-U.S. defence plan.

The possibilities upon which the system are based include these:

1. One-way flights by Red bombers of the TU-4 type (copies of the American B-29). These flights, maybe carrying atomic bombs, might not necessarily be "suicide" missions. The crews could bail out with chutes, take a chance on hiding away.

2. Regular formations of bombers taking off from Red bases to make strikes in formation or to break up into small missions at some point along the route.

3. Bomber missions with aerial tankers to refuel them to and from American targets.

Will Paint Double Line on Highways Foothills Unit Health News

The provincial highways department will commence shortly the painting of double centre traffic lines on hills, according to information received by officials of the Alberta Motor Association.

Some weeks ago, the A.M.A. made strong representations to the provincial authorities over penalties being imposed on motorists for passing down grade on hills when traffic conditions made it apparently quite safe to do so. In one case, the fine was $7 and in the other $50.

Provincial officials said they had no alternative but to prosecute under the provisions of the act.

Now the provincial highways department is preparing a painted or "broken" additional centre line on hills which will indicate where it is safe for one car to pass another when going down hill. In such cases, the vision is such as to enable the driver of the passing car to be certain that traffic is clear ahead and there is no danger of an accident.

Increased Travel To National Parks

Heavy flow of visitors is indicated at national parks in Alberta and other provinces this year.

Indicating the increased volume federal park officials have stated that up to the end of June, some western parks showed a 15 per cent increase in registrations.

One of the factors providing incentive to tourist travel is the improved standard of provincial highways and the extension of hard surfacing. Already many cars have arrived from the southern states and elsewhere south of the border and many thousands more will come to Alberta during the current season.

High commendation already has been expressed by U.S. visitors over the efforts made in Alberta to meet their comforts and holiday enjoyments. Thus, the slogan of "courtesy" now is paying dividends.

One of the major improvements this season will be the completion of reconstruction and surfacing of the Jasper-Banff highway, involving an outlay of $850,000. This work was initiated in 1950. Under the federal policy this year, with defence outlays holding priority, the appropriations for national parks are confined to maintenance or to projects on which work started last year.

No answer.
"Well, does anyone remember who St. Mark was?" Still no answer.
"Surely some of you remember who Peter was?"

The little faces were full of interest, but the room remained quiet. Finally a tiny voice came from the back of the room: "I think he was a wabbit!"

Many diseases are conveyed from person to person by the contamination of food and water with human excreta. Therefore the safe and non offensive disposal of human excreta is a necessity. In these times flush toilets are desirable, which involves running water.

The ultimate disposal system may vary, but the system of treatment is fairly consistent. This is the septic tank, which, contrary to popular belief, does not provide a high degree of purification, but merely breaks down the solids to facilitate disposal in cesspools or fields.

Legislature lays down that a septic tank must be more than 25 feet from a source of water supply, 10 feet from a water system and 2 feet from Lot lines. Septic tanks are not absolutely perfect, and some develop breaks and thus contaminate wells, house basements, etc. if these be close by.

Septic Tanks are usually constructed of concrete six inches thick. There are some prefabricated metal tanks. According to Legislature these must have a capacity of at least 250 cu. ft. and must be made of at least 12 gauge copper heavy steel. This is for the public protection to ensure satisfactory life of the tank.

A septic tank functions by slowing the speed of flow of the sewage. This allows all solid and semi-solid materials to settle to the bottom of the tank. Here it is known as sludge and is digested by bacteria actually contained within the solids themselves, to liquid and gas. The gas escapes through the vent, and any portion of solids which are not liquified remain in the bottom of the tank. This will accumulate and consequently, every three or four years must be removed before it builds up too high and stops the normal functioning of the tank.

There is usually a scum floating in the tank. This is composed of grease, solid particles and soap. Such a scum cannot get out of the tank and consequently must be bailed out frequently then buried.

Finally, do not allow disinfectants from the house to gain entrance to your septic tank. These will kill the bacteria and consequently stop the break down of sludge and thus eventually the satisfactory functioning of your system.

Further information on septic tanks can be obtained from the Foothills Health Unit.

The following communicable diseases have been reported in July, Scarlet Fever 3, Rubella 4, Chicken Pox 6, Whooping Cough 1, Measles 6.

Don't Sell The Youngsters Short

A little incident happened recently that really intrigued us. Getting up early, as we sometimes do, we came down town just at the hour when oil crews were getting ready to drive out to their jobs. Along came a couple of happy-go-lucky local youngsters, lunch box in hand and walking with springy step. When they had gone by another oldtimer said to us: "I never would have believed that that boy would ever get up and dust on a job like he is doing now!" The apparent change in the boy's attitude came through a definite objective in life. He was working, earning his own money, and he was full of pep and extremely happy. The same with the girls. Sometimes the silly little flappers turn out to be the most sincere and satisfactory homemakers, inspiring their husbands to heights of achievement never dreamed of. Don't sell these youngsters short. Most of them are good at heart and have what it takes to get by in the pinches.

—Camrose Canadian.

Good Old Summertime

For generations the song "In The Good Old Summertime," has been popular, not so much because it is a catchy piece of music but because it extolls what is for most people the favorite time of the year.

Inhabitants of northern countries such as ours appreciate the summertime all the more because it is relatively short. In more favored climates, California for instance, where according to the natives summer is an all-year-round season, the summer months cannot mean so much.

For most of us Canadians summer is a real holiday even though we may be unable to get away from our regular work. For a couple of months anyway we are divorced from the onerous chore of shoveling coal and emptying ashes. Little jobs like mowing the lawn or weeding the garden seem pleasant in comparison.

Canadian summer is out-of-dors time. Picnics, sports days, weekends at the lake and homes open wide to the elements are among the features of the season. We have wondered sometimes why any indoor gatherings at all should be held during our short period of fine weather. Why not church, for example, in the open air? We have so little warm weather in this country that seems a pity to miss any of it by being cooped up inside four walls.

Summer is holiday time for many and no doubt this is the best season to get away from it all. More and more business places in this country are closing up completely for a couple of weeks to give employees a holiday. Even retail stores are beginning to follow this practice which is becoming common in the case of factories, warehouses and offices. Being closed for two weeks in the summer, oddly enough, does not seem to cut down on the volume of business handled. Rather by giving management and employees a rest more is accomplished and more efficiently than under the old staggered holiday system.

For each individual summer holidays should mean a complete change. It is a good thing to get away from one's customary haunts, see something of the rest of this great country of ours, meet new people, do new things. Surprising how new contacts and new scenes give a person new ideas and something new to think about and talk about.

If one must have a stay-at-home holiday, the thing to do is change one's whole routine. A pleasant holiday can be spent right here in our home town but only if the holidayer gets away from doing the things he ordinarily would do during his usual work week. A schedule for holidays should include sleeping in each morning, staying up past bed time each night, eating when one feels like it, doing some of the things one hasn't had time for because of the demands of work. Following a changed routine will be a rest.

For school youngsters summertime is synonymous with freedom. Perhaps unfortunately efforts are continually being made to organize through camps and vacation schools the free time of youngsters during the summer vacation. We think that this can be carried too far. Children need a change, just as adults do. The best part of the long summer holidays, if you remember your own childhood, was the freedom from having to do anything in particular. Perhaps that's just bad child psychology, but for the kids it can be fun.

Summertime in Canada is a wonderful season and we are unfortunate in having only a short one. We never lose the zest for summer living because we never have too much of it.

So Big

Dear heart, this wonder love of our

The quivering thrill of love's first kiss,
And peaceful calm of fireside hours.

The Perfect Guest

The invitation of her host.
She caught the train she said she would,

She bought a small and lightish box,
And keys belonging to the locks.
Food rich and rare she did not beg,
But ate the boiled and scrambled eggs.
When offered lukewarm tea she drank it,
And did not crave an extra blanket.
Nor extra pillow for her head.
She seemed to like the spare room bed.
She brought her own self-filling pen,
And always went to bed at ten.
She left no little things behind,
But stories new and gossip kind.

Blind Admiration

Oh, please pull down your blind,

I'm not a Peeping Tom, I swear,
Nor would I snoop to stop and stare,
But simply see what comes in sight,
However intimate and fair.

Doubly Significant

Small boys often ask embarrassing questions. A preacher was addressing the Sunday school and explaining the significance of white.

"Why," he asked, "does a bride desire to be clothed in white at her marriage?"
As no one answered, he went on:

"Because white stands for joy, and the wedding day is the most joyous occasion in a woman's life." Immediately a little fellow piped up:

"Please, sir, why do the men all wear black?"

INSUFFICIENT SOIL PREPARATION CAUSES TREE-GROWTH FAILURE

Most failures to get trees established in prairie districts are a direct result of insufficient soil preparation, says Superintendent John Walker, of the Indian Head, Saks, Forest Nursery Station.

Under normal prairie conditions he adds, land for trees should be properly broken up, ploughed a second time and thoroughly cultivated for two seasons before trees are planted in it.

By following this practice a friable soil, with relatively open subsoil, free from weeds and grass and containing a reserve of soil moisture will be provided.

Previously-cropped land should be summerfallowed carefully for a year before it is used for trees. To conserve as much moisture as possible, summerfallow operations should begin late in May or before the middle of June. Weed growth should be kept at a minimum throughout the season.

In irrigated districts, the required moisture may be readily available. The main problem in these districts will be to destroy all grass and weeds and wide-spread roots before tree-planting is undertaken.

Proper summerfallow is the best assurance of success for tree plantings. Mr. Walker concludes, because water is stored against the possibility of a hot, dry planting season; the following spring and because care after planting is simplified through a reduction in the growth of weeds and grasses.

Married At Calgary

LEBSACK-HENDERSON

Champion, Alta., will be the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward George Lebsack, who pledged nuptial vows at an afternoon ceremony in Central United Church, Calgary, recently. Rev. Gordon Lapp read the marriage lines for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Henderson of Lomond, Alta., and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Lebsack of Champion.

The bride, formerly Miss Joanne Isabelle Henderson, was given in marriage by her brother, John Henderson of Calgary. Her bridal gown of gleaming ivory satin was styled with classic simplicity with the skirt extending from a softly gathered waistline to form a circular train. The long-sleeved fitted bodice was inset with a yoke of sheer net outlined with a band of shirred lace and satin. Delicate embroidery trimmed her finger-tip veil of illusion net which fell from a jewelled coronet and she carried a shower bouquet of roses and orchids.

Attending the bride as matron-of-honor, Mrs. Arthur Wood chose a period frock of apple green nylon marquisette accented with lace trim on the puffed sleeves and fashioned with short puffed sleeves and bertha collar. A braided halo of matching net held her chapel veil in place and she carried a floral fan of rosebuds and carnations. Miss Constance Erskine, the bridesmaid, was attired in a full-skirted frock of lilac net and taffeta. Lace was inserted in the decollete bodice which featured brief puffed sleeves. Her matching chapel veil fell from a halo of pink and white roses and she also carried a floral fan of carnations and rosebuds. The little flower girl, Charlotte Wood, was frocked in yellow embossed organza and carried a colonial bouquet of yellow tea roses and carnations.

Harvey Uffelman was groomsmen and ushers were Irvine Lebsack and Norman Lebsack.

A wedding reception was held at Gene's following the church service at which mothers of the bridal couple assisted in receiving.

Mr. and Mrs. Lebsack spent their honeymoon in Great Falls, Mont., the bride wearing to travel a suit of copper gabardine accented with white accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Coyote Control

For some weeks now, coyote getters (special guns that fire shells loaded with cyanide) have been used in Alberta. Under the Provincial coyote control policy, coyote getters are supplied by the Alberta Department of Agriculture to authorities of special areas, improvement districts, and municipalities only. Farmers desiring getters must make application to their local government. Any municipal district may come under the policy by applying to the Alberta Department of Agriculture. Upon acceptance of applications, officials of the Department are prepared to conduct schools to instruct pest control and area officers in the proper use and safe handling of these coyote control poisons.

W. Lobay, Supervisor of Crop Protection, Alberta Department of Agriculture, reports that because of the present abundant supply of natural food for coyotes not too many getters have been set, but good results are indicated from districts where these guns have been set and given regular attention. Pest control officers are planning to set out more and more getters with the approach of fall and winter.

Your Newspaper And Your Business

Good Relations With Your Local Newspaper Are An Important Part of Good Relations With Your Local Community in General.

(By H. E. Freeman, Manager, News Bureau Public and Industrial Relations Limited).

Virtually every automobile or appliance dealer operates in an area served by a newspaper. Through its news columns and through its advertising space, that newspaper exerts a tremendous influence on the community. For every dealer, then, good relations with the local newspaper can be a long step towards good relations with the community-at-large.

Most businessmen everywhere recognize the important place the local newspaper occupies in any community. Most of them want to have friendly relations with the paper which serves their customers and prospective customers. Many of them have. Others don't quite know how to go about it. And some wind up with bad press relations—simply because they try too hard in the wrong direction.

Yet there is no magic nor wizardry needed in establishing friendly relations with your local paper. It isn't a expensive proposition either. In fact, it represents probably the cheapest way of all of establishing a firm foundation for good customer relations. As in most cases of this kind, there are a few things that should or could be done and a few things that shouldn't be done.

Taking the positive side first (we'll come to the things to avoid later), here are a number of ways in which you, as a dealer, can derive the greatest benefit from your community newspaper.

(1) Use its advertising space. There is no reason for suggesting this, other than the fact that almost invariably it is good business. Your newspaper's advertising columns represent a tested method of reaching regularly all your customers with your sales message, presented how you want it and when you want it.

Pick up any copy of that paper and just take a look at the advertisers in it. You'll find the corner drug store, operated by an individual businessman; and the corner bank, which is part of a mighty financial chain. You'll find the neighborhood shoemaker and some of Canada's largest manufacturing organizations. They all advertise, for no other reason than that it pays off. In all probability, it will pay off for you too.

(2) Get to know the keymen on the paper. You'll find they are interested in you. Tell them about your business—not with the expectation that they'll immediately burst into print with some story which is wonderful publicity for you, but merely with the thought that whenever and if ever they want some information about something relating to your business, they will think of you as a source of information. And once you have met them, keep up your contacts with them. You probably will see them regularly at community affairs, meetings, service clubs—the very places you would want to be yourself as a community leader.

What kind of information might they want from you some day? There's no way of forecasting that because it will depend on the news of the day. But just as a possible sample, there is much talk of steel diversions and other shortages of consumer goods these days; how is that affecting supplies, prices, of your particular products in your community? What does the future look like in terms of supplying consumer demands?

(3) When you are asked questions by your newspaper, answer them to the best of your ability—and answer them fast. Don't hedge, and don't give half answers. Above all, don't ever give answers which you know are incorrect. If you feel you could get more accurate information from a supplier, tell the paper that and call them back with the details after you have talked to the supplier.

If you can't answer a question, say so frankly and say why you can't. If something confidential is involved, the paper will respect its private nature. The newspaper shows its confidence in you by asking you the question in the first place. You can show your confidence in the paper by answering frankly and completely.

(4) If you have something in your business which you think might make news, tell the paper about it. It might be a new model, a new addition to your building, a new method of operation or anything else. Whatever it is, let your paper know, and see if they consider it worth a story. If they do want to run a story about it, help them in every way you can to obtain the material they want. If they don't consider your idea worth writing about, accept their decision without argument or bluster.

Newspaper people know their business as well as you know yours, and if they decide that a story hasn't sufficient interest to their readers it can mean only one thing—the story hasn't sufficient interest in the light of whatever time and space problems are facing the newspaper at the time.

So much for the positive steps you can take to make sure that you are getting the most out of your local newspaper, while at the same time are maintaining good relations with that paper. Now a bit about the pitfalls—the basically silly things that people sometimes do which are bound to lose them all the newspaper respect they are trying to build up. Some of these are bound up in basic principles to a newspaperman. All of them are important things to avoid. Here they are:

(1) Don't try to force a publicity story on a paper simply because you are an advertiser. That's the same as selling a man a car and then having him come back and say, "Now that I bought a car from you, I think you should give me a refrigerator free."

Your advertising space is something you bought because it was useful to you. A story in the news columns must ride on its own merits. In other words, it must be of sufficient interest that he newspaper will want to tell its readers about it.

(2) Whenever you have a story which you think is newsworthy, always present it to the paper on the basis of "you may feel that this will be of interest to your readers"—never on the basis of "surely to goodness you can see that this will be of tremendous interest to your readers." Once again, it's a matter of accepting the fundamental principle that newspaper people know their business better than you know it. The story might be the most interesting thing in the world to you, but that isn't what counts. Its interest to a lot of other people is what should decide whether it is to be used or not.

(3) Never suggest that a paper use a story as a favor to you, simply because you are friendly with its personnel. As a dealer, you can't go around giving away your merchandise to your friends. Don't ask your newspaper to do it either. If you have a good story, the paper will want it because it is good. If it isn't good, the fact that the paper likes you won't make it want the story any more.

(4) Don't be surprised—and certainly don't complain—if the paper handles a story somewhat differently than you would have written it yourself. The newspaper doesn't try to tell you how to sell your products. Don't get the idea that you can give the paper any pointers on how to sell its product, which is news.

(5) If you have supplied information to a paper, don't ask to see in advance how it is going to be used. That implies a lack of trust in the paper's judgement. After all, the paper doesn't ask you to show your production stage. It waits like all your other customers until the finished article is on the showroom floor. And don't bother a newspaperman with such petty details as sending you a clipping of a story in which you are interested. If you want to see what was printed, buy a paper. It won't be expensive.

Those are the highlights of a good approach to sound relations with your community newspaper. Naturally, there are a lot of other little things which, over a long period, must go into the cementing of mutual trust and understanding between your business and your newspaper. Like a lot of other things involved in business experience, they have to be learned on the spot, not picked up from books. Basically, however, they all boil down to good common sense practices, plus the realization that a newspaperman is just another businessman doing his particular job in the manner which experience has taught him is best.

People who suffer from high blood pressure should avoid emotional upsets and a too strenuous way of life. Overeating, which can cause overweight, is one of the "Don't's". The doctor's instructions as to diet, exercise and rest should be followed carefully.

Varieties Of Winter Wheat

Two varieties of winter wheat are recommended for Alberta. These are Kharkov M.C. 22, which is the best available winter wheat variety for varietal zones 2, 3, and 4, and Yogo, which is best adapted to the drier areas of zone 1 and 2 in the southeast part of the province. Two other varieties, Jones Five and Turkey Red, are also grown to some extent but these varieties are definitely inferior to Kharkov and Yogo and cannot be recommended as winter wheat varieties for any part of Alberta.

Kharkov M.C. 22 is a hard red winter wheat selected for its greater resistance to lodging, from the original Kharkov. In comparative tests over a number of years at the Lethbridge Experimental Station and at other points in Southern Alberta it was the most winter hardy of all varieties tested and was not exceeded in yield by any other variety. It is somewhat less resistant to shattering than is Yogo but is much more resistant than is Jones Five. It has better strength of straw than Yogo and thus is better adapted to the moist regions where lodging is more likely to occur. Although not of the same quality as hard red spring wheat, this variety produces a flour suitable for bread making.

Yogo is a hard red winter wheat which is practically equal to Kharkov M.C. 22 in winter survival, yield, and quality. It is superior to Kharkov M.C. 22 in resistance to shattering but tends to be somewhat weak in the straw and may lodge badly under moist conditions. It is resistant to bunt or covered smut, which is a character not possessed by any of the other varieties grown in Alberta. Because of its resistance to shattering, which makes it particularly suited to combining, its resistance to bunt but its tendency to lodge, is best adapted to the drier areas of south east Alberta.

Jones Five, although preferred by some because of its lack of beards, cannot be considered a desirable winter wheat variety of Alberta. It is definitely less winter hardy than Kharkov and Yogo and for this reason is a much more risky variety to grow. It is about equal to Kharkov in strength of straw but shatters badly. In quality it is intermediate between a hard red winter and a soft winter wheat. Thus it is not of good quality for either bread or pastry flour.

Turkey Red is still grown to a very limited extent in the foothills region. It is not as winter hardy as Kharkov, nor is it as strong in the straw. It has been the standard of quality for Alberta hard red winter wheat. Since it is definitely inferior in winter survival and other characters it will no doubt soon be completely replaced by Kharkov M.C. 22 or some other better variety.

The best variety of winter wheat for all areas of Alberta except the drier south eastern part is probably Kharkov M.C. 22. As a variety for the south eastern part of the province Yogo has some advantages over Kharkov. These two varieties, although the best available at present, are not considered entirely satisfactory and it is hoped that a new variety with superior hardiness and quality will be available in the future. Investigations are now underway to try to develop such a variety.

MARFAK

STICKS TO BEARINGS BETTER AND LONGER!

Progressive farmers today are selecting Texaco Marfak chassis lubricant for all their farm machines, because Marfak sticks to the job. In the toughest going Texas Marfak won't jar off, drip out, wash off or dry up—that means you get longer life for bearings, more safe hours of operation between lubrications. Farmers know how important that is—particularly in combine operation.

HAIL INSURANCE

Protect Your Investment

THE HAIL SEASON is far from being over. Crop prospects are good and if crops were ever worth insuring it is this year, when hail damage in Alberta is already the worst on record. Additional hail coverage apparently is warranted. If the crop is harvested, the premium is not missed too much, and is deductible as a farm expense for income tax purposes. If hailed out, the extra revenue is much appreciated. It is not too late to protect your investment.

Line company rates are attractive in most townships and some coverage is still available in all townships. Have six companies.

GET $1.85 BUSHEL FOR 1951 WHEAT

(Searle Grain Report)

The Argentina Government has announced that the prices paid to producers for the 1951-52 crop year will be $1.85 per bushel for wheat and $1.52 per bushel for corn. These are initial payments with a possibility of growers sharing in profits from exports. This price, however, is not expected to be large enough to stimulate seeding to any great extent. Seeding which will continue until August is therefore not expected to be much above the 1950-51 acreage of the 16.2 million acres.

A Farm Storage Tank Makes Dollars and Sense

Like many other sound investments, a farm storage tank more than pays for itself in dollars. Here is why—it makes sense!

1. Helps Prevent 75% of Fuel Troubles—Proper storage and handling is most important. For cleaner fuel, raise the nozzle end of the storage tank to allow any sediment to accumulate at the lower end where it can be removed.
2. Prevents Waste—Fuel is easily spilled or left in the bottom of a barrel whether you use a pump or a pump. With a storage tank gravity hose there is little or no waste.
3. Lessens Fire Hazards—Gasoline in a farm building creates a serious fire hazard. A storage tank located some distance from farm buildings complies with fire insurance regulations.
4. Convenient and Time Saving—Fill your engine fuel tank with a gravity hose. In busy seasons your fuel is there when you need it. There is little deterioration in quality during the winter or between busy seasons if your tank is full.

Using a Swather
For Making Hay

C. A. Cheshire, Extension Agricultural Engineer, Alberta Department of Agriculture, advises that results from tests conducted in Eastern Canada indicate that the swather can be used satisfactorily for making hay. Moreover, this machine will replace two pieces of machinery, the mower and rake.
When used in this manner, the conventional grain knife with its serrated edges is replaced by the smooth flex knife. This change is more necessary with the more succulent crops such as alfalfa and clover than with grasses such as brome.

In addition the advantages of lower investment cost on the farm and reduced operating cost of the equipment as a result of its longer hours of use, there are other benefits attributed to this method of hay making. From the experiments conducted, it appears that curing time is reduced below that for mowing and side delivery raking. This is an important factor when we realize that it reduces the risk of rain damage, which is one of our main hazards to the hay crop.

A second advantage claimed for this method of cutting hay is that regrowth is much more rapid, which means an earlier and heavier second crop. The reason for more rapid development after cutting is that the tender shoots that are exposed and sunburned by the mowing operations are shaded and protected by the longer swather stubble and can thus continue uninterrupted growth.

Although disadvantages may appear in this operation, the use of the swather may enable operators who have not a full line of haymaking equipment to take advantage of this year's abundant hay

countries such demands have already been made. How long that time will be delayed in Alberta will depend on the farmer's initiative in adopting methods that will resist deterioration of the soil.

Crop rotations, trash cover, wise use of machinery, the seeding down of water courses and the use of fertilizers, all help in maintaining fertility and keeping the soil on the farm. If these things are put into practice generally throughout Alberta, there will be little need for criticism of the farmer's actions in his efforts to conserve our soils.

Have more fun on holidays! Now's the time to get extra safe Dominion Royal tires.
